Globalization is the process by which economies, cultures and population around the world become more integrated and interdependent. It is driven by advances in technology, transportation and communication, which have facilitated the flow of people, goods and ideas across national borders.

Globalization has both positive and negative aspects. On the positive side it has led to economic growth, the spread of new ideas and technologies and increased cultural exchanges. In many parts of the world, it has also helped reduce poverty and raise living standards.

But globalization has also had negative consequences. This has led to job losses in some sectors, as companies move production to countries with lower labour costs. It has also contributed to income inequality and environmental degradation, as companies prioritize over sustainability.

Questions :

- (a) What is globalization?
- (b) What is the driving force behind globalization?
- (c) What are the positive aspects of globalization?
- (d) What are the negative aspects of globalization?
- (e) What happens if companies prioritize sustainability?
